HISTORY AND HABITS OF ALFALFA HOPPER

Lengthy Study of Insects Made at Local Laboratory Put Into Print

An interesting publication, much of the data for which was gathered in the Salt River valley, has recently been issued by the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., relating to the life, history and habits of the three-cornered alfalfa hopper, species of which are found quite numerous in this and various Southern Arizona districts. The investigations were carried on at the local entomological laboratory by V. L. Wildermuth, assisted by R. N. Wilson, T. N. Scott and Edmund H. Gibson, and the publication represents as far as possible their combined efforts towards determining the many varied habits and life histories of the insect.

In summary to his article Mr. Wildermuth has this to say which he believes will be of much help to the farmers of the valley who's alfalfa crops are hampered in their growth by the ravages of the three-cornered hopper:

The three-cornered alfalfa hopper (Sticteophaga festiva) is an insect of economic importance to alfalfa and cow peas in the Southern States. Injury is due to the sucking of plant juices by both adults and larvae, and the development of a feeding scar which often takes the form of a rim or circle and which is usually accompanied by a gall formation. Plants of the legume family constitute the favorite food.

The eggs are deposited in the stems of the food plants, usually back of the sheath or below the surface of the ground. In cowpeas the eggs are deposited in pockets on the stems.

The egg period in Arizona occupies from 12 to 41 days and the five stages of the nymphal period from 22 to 63 days. The average combined period for both periods is about 75 days.

In Southern Arizona there are four generations annually and during extremely mild winters the adult insects are active throughout the season. During colder winters the species hibernates in both the egg and adult stages.

The alfalfa hopper is little affected by natural enemies and is only reduced in numbers by the variable winter temperatures. The Sonoran redwing was found to feed upon the species.

The one practice that will bring about a considerable reduction of the insects is clean methods of farming. When the time comes that each and every farmer is cultivating only as much land as he has means to handle properly—and by the term "handle properly," is meant the tilling of his land in such a way that the maximum returns per acre will be secured, then, and then only, will insect devastations be reduced to a minimum.

The alfalfa hopper can be greatly reduced just by such handling, which must include the eradication of weeds, brush, bunches of wild grass, rubbish, etc., along fences, ditches, and other places. The fact that the alfalfa hopper is found during hibernation in places where it is protected from cold and from exposure to its enemies shows that a great many wintering adults may be eliminated by cleaning such hiding places.

Copies of the Three-Cornered Alfalfa Hopper publication may be secured upon application to the bureau of entomology laboratory in Tempe.

DOG CATCHING

Excitement prevailed about the corner of Mill avenue and Fifth street for a few moments yesterday forenoon when an apparently mad dog offered to take charge of things. People scattered all ways and at once became fugitives in seek of a place of safety. The animal was finally sent to the happy hunting ground after a hot, hot, merry chase instituted by the marshal.

BACK FORM THE MINES

Fred J. Boyce of the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York returned Tuesday evening from a week's business visit at Ray. The rains of last week were likewise quite heavy in that district and in several instances at Ray, property was destroyed by the flooded waters of the ground. After the return to the valley was made first by a freight train, then a motor car and eventually the train with short transfer walks at each change.

CITY COUNCIL DOING SOME SPRING PRUNING

Street Supervisors' Stipend Decimated to Sum of One Dollar Per Month and the End is Not Yet

When the city fathers congregated in regular session at the town hall Tuesday evening with all members present to earn their one dollar per month, it was with pruning shears sharpened and the flag of economy floating from the masthead. Street Supervisor Horsley regularly elected by the people and who has heretofore been drawing a salary of eight dollars per month was placed upon a salary of one dollar per month. Moreover, the street supervisor is not the only official to feel the effects of a submarine but a committee consisting of members Fraser and Scott was appointed to do a little reconnoitering in the vicinity of the police and water departments. Their findings will be reported at the next meeting of the council.

It was brought to the attention of the guardians of the city that a large number of business men would like to have their pieces of business looked after during the hours of the night and the name of W. H. Gilbert was suggested as an individual who would be satisfactory. Mr. Gilbert was appointed at a salary of $75 per month and will commence serving as soon as he is sworn into office.

It was brought to the attention of the council that certain supplies were needed to bring the fire fighting apparatus up to a state of efficiency required and a committee was appointed to confer with fire chief C. Fred Brackett concerning the articles needed.

Council Major of the streets and alleys committee recommended a street grader which could be had for $175 and upon motion it was decided to purchase the equipment.

For the accommodation of the farmers who have not reached the economic class, provision was made for hitching posts along the east and west side of Macdonald street directly north of Main. The posts are to be 456 inches and are to be connected by wire cables. It was brought out that the farmers have complained that there are not sufficient hitching posts and the suggestion was acted upon forthwith.

It was brought out by the city attorney that the action taken against the Southside Gas and Electric company had been heard by the Corporation Commission last week and that a decision would doubtless be given about the first of next month. Also the suit against the reclamation service relative to the price of irrigation water would be taken up within a few weeks.

It was decided that the extension of tax paying time without penalty until May 1st should not be made. Water Sup't. Gollagher brought up the matter of putting in a four inch main along Hilbert street from first avenue north to First street, including three fire plugs was necessary for the fire protection of a number of residences. He stated that the water board had approved of the plans. He brought out the information that the work of putting in the main along Robson street has been held up awaiting the action of the council along Hilbert street. It was believed that the mains could be put in separate bids and a better figure received for doing the work. The plans of the water board were finally approved.

BURIAL TODAY
The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. P. A. Williams were held in Douglas yesterday afternoon when the body will be brought to this place for burial along side her husband who died last June at the place. Mrs. H. D. McCray, a daughter with whom Mrs. Williams was making her home will accompany the remains to this place. Arriving here the body will be taken to the undertaking parlors of W. A. Burton and from there will be removed to the cemetery.

PHOENIX VISITOR

C. A. Baldwin, was a capital city visitor yesterday.

BAPTIST MEETING

The series of meetings being conducted at the Baptist church are progressing with increasing interest. Rev. C. Sydney Minkley, a former pastor of the local church has developed into a splendid evangelistic preacher and his sermons are highly complimented. He is attracting many people and it is believed that the meetings will result in much good being done in the community.

PRICE OF EGGS LOW

The selling price of eggs in the local market has dropped to fifteen cents per dozen. This is a rather low figure for this time of year. However, two years ago during the latter part of February, the price dropped to twelve and one-half cents per dozen.

PHOENIX VISITOR

Ed Drew, of the firm of Drew Brothers Grocery, was a Phoenix visitor yesterday, where he completed the purchasing of a complete stock of groceries. The proprietors announce that the store will open for business not later than Saturday of this week at the location immediately east of the Drew Lumber yard.

ARBOR DAY CLOSING

On account of Friday being Arbor Day, the banks of the city will remain closed. The schools, it is understood, are making preparations to observe the event with programs.

OPENS RESTAURANT

James Underwood is soon to open up a restaurant in the building in the rear of Groves Place. The fixtures have practically been installed.

LEASED RANCH

George and "Bones" Lubb have leased the Joe Gladish ranch east of town on the transmission line road and will move their effects to that place in the near future.

COTTON EXPERT TO LEAVE
J. C. Martin, assistant, office of markets in the U. S. department of agriculture will leave Mesa tomorrow for Washington. Mr. Martin has spent the past several months in Mesa where he has been in charge of the local market for cotton as a representative of the government. He has proved a very efficient assistant to the growers and has made many friends throughout this section of the country.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE LESSENE
On account of the prevalence of the epidemic of diphtheria and small pox the daily attendance in the schools have been seriously effected.
